Raising Standards... it must be Classic Marble

Classic Marble (Showers) Ltd, Northern Irish manufacturer of shower trays, wall panels and Classi Seal® have yet again highlighted their ongoing commitment to raising standards by recently achieving ISO 14001:2004 accreditation. This complements their existing ISO 9001, Quality Management System. ISO 14001 is an internationally accepted standard that sets out how companies can put in place an effective Environmental Management System which addresses the balance between maintaining profitability and reducing environmental impact.

Christopher Hackett says "As a credible manufacturer we are aware of our environmental responsibilities. Not only has the accreditation process raised environmental awareness within our workforce, it has improved the day to day running, and has the subsequent benefit of emphasising to our existing and potential customers the type of company we are, continually striving to raise standards within the industry."
